

NAME BALLOON POP RACE

Items Needed: Balloons all the same color, Small slips of paper, Pens or pencils

Divide the group into teams of six or more people each. Each team then selects the person in the group who has the easiest name to remember. Next, the teams sit in circles and everyone (except for the person who was selected) is given a balloon, a slip of paper, and a pen or pencil. The players each write down their name on the paper, put the paper into their balloon, and blow the balloon up and tie it. The team piles all of their balloons in the middle of their circle and mixes them up.

The person on each team with the easiest name to remember starts the game by selecting a balloon out of the pile. When the leader says, “go”, the person holding the balloon must pop it and then call out the name that is inside on the slip of paper. The person whose name was called then must grab a balloon, pop it, and read the name. Continue until all the balloons have been popped. The first team to finish wins.
