

TRADE YA CANDY

Items Needed: Small colored candies, (i.e., M&M's, Skittles, Spree, Starburst, etc.)

Give each person the same number of pieces of candy in a mixture of colors. Group members are to trade pieces of candy with each other in an attempt to get all of one color. Each person may only trade one piece at a time and may not trade with the same person twice.

As they trade candy, they are to share something about themselves with each person they trade with. When the people have all one color of candy, they may eat their candy.

Instead of using one kind of candy that has different colors, you can give each person a wide variety of candies and each person tries to get all of the same kind of candy

Another variation could be that the person is given 10 pieces of the same kind of candy and he/she must trade to try to get ten different kinds of candy.
